

TWO EXTRA SESSIONS THIS YEAR PLANNED, FIRST, TO RAISE REVENUE, TO OPEN JULY 10

INCREASE OF U.S. ARMED FORCES URGED BY F.D.R.

But West Pointers Told
Country Still Desires
Peace; Points To Fate of Undefended Nations.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—(AP)—The nation's armed forces should be further strengthened, President Roosevelt said today, but he emphasized that we still desire peace "by honorable and pacific conduct of our international relations."

"During recent months," Mr. Roosevelt said in an address to the graduating class at the United States Military Academy, "international political considerations have required still greater emphasis upon the vitalization of our defense, for we have had dramatic illustrations of the fate of undefended nations."

The President said, too, that our desire for peace "must never be mistaken for weakness." The young men who formed the class were urged to develop for peace the qualities they learned in war studies.

King's Visit Significant.
Mr. Roosevelt declared the just concluded visit of King George VI "as a courteous recognition of the cordiality and good will which prevails between two great nations."

"Its significance lay in the fact that friendship could exist between two countries since both were without fear—without fear of any act of aggression of one against the other. To achieve that result, strength is needed; strength which comes, not from arms alone, but from restraint, understanding and co-operation which in turn are the product of trained and disciplined minds."

456 Given Diplomas.
After presenting diplomas to the 456 members of the largest class in the academy's history, the President and his wife attended a reception at the home of Brigadier General Jay L. Benedict, superintendent of the academy.

The President in his address turned almost immediately to the peace-time value of the army. He stood on a flag-draped platform.

Commands Graduates.

"Let me command to you," he said, "in your army careers a continuous study of problems outside as well as inside the military field, as the necessary preparation for the greatest success in your chosen work."

"These qualities of co-operation, discipline and the self-restraint and self-reliance which make them useful are the very fabric of modern life. If it can be developed internationally as well as nationally we shall be materially nearer to a realization of our hopes of peace."

The American army, he said, "does not stand for aggression, domination or fear," and then remarked as "a little-appreciated fact" that the army's constructive activities "have saved more lives through its peacetime work and have created more wealth and well-being through its technical operations than it has destroyed during its wars."

Off on their wedding trip to Highlands yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Stitt paused for the photographer after their secret marriage at the home of Dr. Louie D. Newton, of the Druid Hills Baptist church. The bride is the former Miss Lota Knighton.

BRITAIN TO MEET FORCE WITH FORCE

Reaffirms Stand in Face of Appeasement Claims;
Envoy's Life Threatened

By The Associated Press.
The British government answered opposition accusations of new "appeasement" inclinations yesterday with a firm declaration that it was prepared to meet force with force.

Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax made Britain's stand clear as tension mounted in Danzig, Europe's current danger spot, over another incident involving Germans and Poles in the free city.

In this era of power politics, Lord Halifax told the British house of lords, Britain had no thought of abandoning her policy of "resistance against force."

Speech Criticized.

His statement was prompted by barrage of criticism leveled at his speech of last Thursday expressing Britain's willingness to negotiate German claims for "living space."

Before he spoke a foreign office expert on central European affairs, William Strang, left by plane for Moscow bearing a new formula which Britain hoped would produce the long-delayed British-French-Russian mutual assistance pact.

The situation in Danzig, meanwhile, took a serious turn when Nazis arrested a Polish customs inspector on a charge of spying and attempting to kidnap two storm

Vice President of Citizens &
Southern Bank, Bride
Visit Highlands.

Arthur J. Stitt, vice president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, and his bride were honeymooning last night after their secret marriage yesterday morning.

The bride, the former Miss Lota Knighton, and Mr. Stitt, went to the Oakdale road home of Dr. Louie D. Newton for the ceremony, which came as a surprise to their many friends. Immediately after the rites, the couple left for Highlands, N. C., on their wedding trip.

Upon their return they will make their home at 1790 North Decatur road, N. E.

Mrs. Stitt, is the daughter of the late Henry H. and Linda McMichael Knighton, of Cuthbert.

She received her education at Andrew College and is a member of the Kappa Gamma sorority. She is a member of the Business and Professional Woman's Club and the Atlanta Woman's Credit Union.

The groom, who is a prominent figure in banking and Masonic circles, is a devotee of fishing and gardening. He is a native of Chillicothe, Ohio, but came to Atlanta as a young man and became connected with the Central Bank & Trust Corporation. After that institution was merged with the Citizens & Southern National Bank, he was made a vice president, in charge of the Mitchell street office.

He insisted that the county agent is the head and front of the whole Agricultural Department in every county in which his services are utilized.

GEORGE ATTACKS WALLACE TACTICS ON SUBSIDY PLAN

Contends County Agents
Are Recruiting Members for Farm Bureau To Back Cotton Program.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, charged in a vigorous speech on the floor today that the Roosevelt administration, through the United States Department of Agriculture, is seeking to effect political organization of farmers as a means of mustering support for its cotton export subsidy plan which was recently rejected in the upper chamber.

To this end, he said, letters are being franked out by county agents of the department on government stationery urging farmers of the south to join the American Farm Bureau Federation, an organization which has supported the administration export subsidy proposal.

Concluding his remarks, the senator inserted in the Congressional Record an editorial from the Atlanta Constitution of May 11, 1939, entitled "The Cotton Export Subsidy."

Scores Wallace.

Scoring Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and the county agents linked with the campaign, the Georgia senator quoted from photostatic copies of two such letters, one from County Agent R. L. Griffin, Marion, Ala., and the other from County Agent J. W. Whitaker, Greenville, Miss., to prove that while they urge membership in a particular farm bureau or organization, they are written on Department of Agriculture letterheads.

George said that he had no objection to farmers of Georgia or any other state joining the farm bureau, but that he did take the position the Department of Agriculture and this administration "has no justification whatsoever for sending out letters of this kind through county agents, who are the official representatives of the secretary of agriculture himself in his capacity as administrator of the AAA, and the soil conservation act."

He insisted that the county agent is the head and front of the whole Agricultural Department in every county in which his services are utilized.

CHAIRMAN AGAINST FARE EXPERIMENT

Any Trolley Losses Would Fall Upon 85 Per Cent of Georgia, Says McDonald

ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—Georgia's public service commission "would hardly be justified in interfering with management to the extent of compelling an experimental revision" in Atlanta's streetcar fares, it was declared here tonight by Chairman Walter R. McDonald of the commission.

He pointed to the decline of streetcar systems in Georgia to the point where only two—in Atlanta and Savannah—survive and added that one of these, Savannah, was operating "at a heavy loss." Any Atlanta loss would have to be made up by users of electricity, affecting 85 per cent of Georgia, the chairman declared.

Chairman McDonald said he knew of no action contemplated by the commission to do otherwise than continue to see that Atlantans received adequate service at proper rates. His statement, made on a visit here to the twenty-fifth reunion of his class at the University of Georgia, followed one published Sunday by Commissioner Jud P. Wilhoit concerning Atlanta fares.

The McDonald statement in full follows:

Rivers Walks Toward N. Y. World's Fair

Governor Revealed as Aisle
Pacer as Special Gets Under Way.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

ABOARD GEORGIA'S WORLD FAIR SPECIAL, June 12.—Governor Rivers was moving slowly toward New York city and its World Fair tonight, walking the whole distance the hardest way, up and down the aisles of a 15-car train. Up ahead two engines are puffing and puffing through the mountains of the Atlantic seaboard, doing their best to help the Governor get his crowd of 500 Georgians to the fair in time for Georgia Day. The train is jammed to overflowing with enthusiastic men, women and children from all corners of Georgia, all struggling valiantly to adhere to Lon Sullivan's printed idea:

"Let's conduct ourselves in a manner befitting the dignity of the commonwealth we represent."

The First Concert.

The Georgia crowd moved out of Atlanta's Terminal station this afternoon just a few minutes after schedule, heading toward Athens, where the self-conscious young members of the all-girl 125-piece Georgia Military band delivered themselves of the first scheduled concert that is to be their job in most of the cities between Atlanta and New York.

At Athens the Governor and his party were greeted by the mayor, A. G. Dudley, and a group of city, county and business leaders.

The next stop was at Elberton, where Mayor J. S. Asbury and leaders of his community joined in an equally noisy tribute to the crowd headed for the fair.

The last official stop for the train for the night is to be at Greenwood, S. C., where state officials and city officials of Greenwood are to cheer the Georgians to the extent of the (Robert's) political position and his private interests."

Robert, who as executive director of the southeastern governors' conference has been actively urging a more equitable national freight rate structure, said the New York congressman should keep his own correspondence up to date before complaining about the President not answering one of his letters.

"After his first attack on me,"

ROBERT ANSWERS LOBBYING CHARGE

Atlanta Defends Battle Waged Against Differentials in Freight Rates.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Irked at the failure of the White House to take cognizance of an earlier protest he had filed, Representative Martin J. Kennedy, Democrat, of New York city, today made public another letter he had addressed to President Roosevelt complaining against alleged lobbying activities of Lawrence Wood (Chip) Robert Jr., of Atlanta, secretary of the Democratic national committee, in behalf of legislation to eliminate discriminating southern rail freight rate differentials.

The New York congressman revealed that the only response obtained from the White House secretariat, stating that his communication was being referred by the President to Postmaster General James A. Farley, the national party chairman. Chairman Farley, Kennedy said, had not troubled to do anything about the Robert lobbying charges.

Express Concern.

The burden of Kennedy's latest complaint to the President is that the Republicans are likely to make capital of the situation. He expressed concern less the Republican leadership "publicly call attention to the inconsistency which exists between his (Robert's) political position and his private interests."

OCTOBER MEETING WOULD TAKE UP ECONOMY REPORT

Administration Plans
Call for Only Fiscal Bills
To Be Considered in Brief Summer Session.

Legislative observers ringed July 10 and October 9 yesterday as possible opening dates for two extra sessions of Georgia's general assembly.

Proposals for a short "revenue" session next month, and a subsequent "general" call in October, were disclosed by Governor Rivers as he prepared to depart for the New York World's Fair.

The chief executive, whose "little New Deal" has been crippled by revenue shortage, said the split-session arrangement was urged by administration leaders in the house and senate.

Brief Session.

"By restricting the first session to revenue measures," the Governor explained, "the legislators could do this in a brief session, go home until after the tobacco markets, cotton gathering and marketing, and return to consider matters of economy and other emergencies that could not be included in a strictly revenue session."

Although the Governor said he had not reached definite decision, he hinted strongly he would follow this course. Legislative sources close to the administration mentioned July 10 and October 9 as likely dates for convening the assembly.

These sources said it was hoped a sharply restricted call, covering only revenue measures and a general appropriation act, would permit the assembly to conclude its work and adjourn before convening of the Baptist World Alliance in Atlanta July 22-28. The convention is likely to tax the city's hotels to capacity.

To Meet Leaders.

The Governor was expected to confer early next week with House Speaker Roy V. Harris, Senate President John B. Spivey, and Attorney General Ellis Arnall on preparation of the first call.

A July session, devoted to revenue measures, has been urged by administration adherents, who point to the $8,500,000 deficit with which the state is expected to close its fiscal year June 30. Included in outstanding obligations is approximately $5,000,000 owed Georgia school teachers, and $380,000 owed employees of the University System. These debts automatically are written off the books July 1, unless the assembly should make

BROKERS' LICENSE INCREASE PLANNED

Council Tax Committee Recommends $450 Rise for Eight Atlanta Firms.

City council's tax committee yesterday recommended that the business licenses of eight Atlanta brokerage firms be increased from the former $300 limit to $750 a year as it took advantage for the first time of a legislative action authorizing the city to assess a maximum of $1,000 a year for business licenses.

Companies affected are Courts & Company, Beer & Company, Fenner & Beane, Norris & Hirshberg, Dobbs & Company, Grant & Company, J. H. Hilsman & Company and Thomson & McKinnon.

Alderman G. Dan Bridges, committee member, expressed doubt of the wisdom of the "large increase," and urged the committee to set $500 as the cost of operating in Atlanta.

J. Allen Couch, committee chairman, and other members of the committee, however, insisted on the increase.

Joe C. Little, senior tax assessor, was requested to make an investigation between now and council's meeting next Monday to ascertain whether the companies are "making money." Bridges served notice that if he is convinced the "larger amount is otherwise, he will insist on the $500 maximum.

John L. Tye, new president of the Georgia Bar Association, will be invited to speak, and an old-fashioned fish fry will be served.

Grocers Told To Keep Up With Times

Smarter Merchandising, Modernized Stores and Cultivation of Friends Urged to Georgia Group.

Smarter merchandising and closer co-operation would solve many problems of the independent food dealer, W. H. H. Jones, Richmond county legislator, told delegates to the 19th annual convention of the Georgia Retail Food Dealers' Association yesterday.

Jones was the featured speaker on yesterday's program of the three-day convention which opened Sunday with a barbecue at Lakemore, and will continue through today.

Listing the nation's three major disappointments as Wilson's war to end wars, the collapse of the Coolidge era of prosperity, and the New Deal's failure to balance overproduction and hunger, the speaker saw a "festival of profits" ahead, and suggested a program by which the independent grocer and butcher might get their share.

"Bugaboo" of Dealers.

His suggestions included modernizing stores, making friends of customers and neighbors, and concentrated action on problems too large or difficult for small groups to tackle.

Obviously referring to chain stores, he called consolidation the "bugaboo" of independent food dealers in Georgia.

"As consolidation of industries continue," he said, "the profits go to an increasingly small group of persons, usually out of the community, while the community, almost profitless, is left to carry the burden of its poor, ill and unemployed."

Committees Named.

The meeting was called to order by President John W. McDonald Jr., of Augusta, who appointed several committees, one of them a legislative committee to formulate a statement on the sales tax that will be taken to the floor of the convention at this morning's session. Conversation among the grocers indicated that the convention will go on record as strongly opposing the tax.

The delegates were welcomed to Atlanta by Mayor Hartsfield, J. H. Merritt, Mrs. Audrey Sims Hargrett, and Attorney General Ellis Arnall for Governor Rivers. In a brief statement, Arnall went on record as opposing new taxes for grocers and their customers.

Response was made by Lester W. Grady, of Macon. Invocation was given by Rabbi Harry Epstein.

Brief talks were made by Mrs. Lena Kuninsky, of Atlanta, who spoke on the "Individual Retail Grocer," and Grace Hatley, of the Atlanta Journal. A skit, "A Day in a Grocery Store," was put on by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grady, of Macon.

An entertainment program was arranged for the delegates yesterday afternoon, after their luncheon at the Biltmore. Last night, the hotel was the scene of a banquet and dance, presided over by Robert M. Gamble, of Macon.

Sally Saver, food editor of The Constitution, will be one of the speakers on today's program, which includes an address by S. A. Camp, of Atlanta, a round-table discussion of grocers' problems, reports of the resolutions and nominating committees, and election of officers for the coming year.

At the speakers' table yesterday morning at the convention of the Georgia Retail Food Dealers' Association being held here were, left to right, W. H. H. Jones, Richmond county legislator and one of the speakers on yesterday's program. Convention will continue through today.

Present at the 19th annual convention of the food dealers were, left to right, standing, A. W. Yerrington and Joe Sheppard, both of Atlanta, and seated, D. C. Nevitt, Atlanta; R. C. Staples, Augusta, and Dick Hymer, New York. The association is composed of approximately 9,000 independent Georgia retailers. Mayor Hartsfield Greeted the Visitors.

Florida Canal Proponents Ready To Cut Down Size of the Project

New Plan To Revive Waterway Would Include It in Omnibus Bill, Making Passage Only Large Enough for Barges and Yachts.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(P) A move to remodel plans for the Florida ship canal and obtain authorization for the waterway at this session developed today.

This was one of several reported plans to revive the proposal which the senate rejected last month.

The $200,000,000 passage would be cut down to barge and yacht dimensions and made a part of the omnibus authorization bill for river and harbors.

It was learned on good authority that Florida's leaders of the giant waterway had approached army engineers on the idea of modifying plans—for the present at least—in such a way that the cross-state channel would become merely a connecting link between the Atlantic and gulf intracoastal waterways.

If engineers and congress approved, the canal would be dug to a depth of 9 feet and a width of 100 feet. Unofficially, the cost of Warns Closed Economies Leading Reich, Italy To Destruction.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(P) Secretary Hull, on the fifth anniversary of his trade-agreements program, invited Germany and Italy in effect today to line up with him and warned them their closed economies were leading them to destruction.

In a formal statement issued five years from the day the trade agreements act was approved by President Roosevelt and became law, Hull, white-haired advocate of lower tariffs, declared: "If two larger nations enter into a discriminatory arrangement between themselves, with an agreement to divide their spheres of influence, other nations inevitably will take defensive economic measures and, instead of establishing peace and economic rehabilitation and progress, the result is bound to be a general collapse."

He also dropped a hint to the small nations of Europe and elsewhere which have, or are concluding, barter agreements with Germany.

FULTON PREPARES TO RESUME TESTS OF RELIEF CLIENTS

Access to Lists Promised by Welfare Board Director; Grand Jurors Press Investigation.

Fulton county medical authorities yesterday prepared to resume the examination of 3,000 unemployed relief clients as access to lists was promised by Dr. William Huck, director of the Board of Public Welfare.

Protesting "piece-meal" submission of relief client lists by the Department of Welfare, Dr. Roy W. McGee, county health officer, yesterday sought a conference between Huck and Glore Hailey, chairman of the county commission's aims and juvenile committee. He said the manner in which the lists were being provided was re-

ZANE GREY FIGHTS CHARGING SHARKS THAT SHAKE BOAT

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 12.—(AP)—Author Zane Grey, returning today from Australia, said his party encountered sharks so ferocious they charge a large boat and shake it.

"They are the white pointer shark, the most deadly of the shark family," Grey said. "When hooked, instead of running away they charge time after time. They often grab the propeller and shake the boat. They have been known to knock men out of boats with their tails."

The Grey party brought back several of the sharks, one weighing 1,150 pounds.

tarding the physical tests ordered by the commissioners.

Dr. Huck promised that the original list, used by the medical department when the first group of 521 persons were examined, would be returned to Dr. McGee and that the examinations could be pursued uninterrupted in the future.

A special Fulton county grand jury subcommittee, headed by Fred J. Cooleidge Jr., yesterday held its second session in what has been heralded as a sweeping probe of the unemployed relief controversy.

A mass of documentary evidence was studied yesterday and several of the persons whom county doctors pronounced able to work were interviewed by the committee. Cooleidge said last night, however, that the committee had arrived at no conclusion.

Welfare board members also are scheduled to appear before the grand jury and request that it authorize the county commission to levy a special three-cent tax for relief purposes in lieu of the 2½ mills recommended by the preceding grand jury.

MACON, Ga., June 12.—(AP)—In accordance with an agreement entered into some time ago, relatives of Richard G. Gallogly, young Atlanta serving a life sentence for murder, issued a sworn statement here today showing they have spent $1,900 in attempts to secure clemency for him.

An affidavit signed by Mrs. Frances Gray Yankee, Gallogly's mother, and Mrs. James R. Gray, his grandmother, certified that the two women had paid the following fees to lawyers for representing Gallogly in a fight for clemency.

To Arnold, Gambrell & Arnold, $1,200 for preparing application, obtained recommendations and letters to Stonewall H. Dyer and Ellis G. Arnall, $500, for working up file and presenting it to the prison commission in 1935.

To W. J. Wallace, $200 in 1932.

"We certify," the affidavit stated, "that the above is all the money that has been paid by the two women to the relatives of Richard G. Gallogly to attorneys or to anyone else in connection with his application for clemency since his incarceration."

WILLIAMS' CASE HEADS FOR COURT

Solicitor Files Bill of Exceptions to Judge Etheridge's Action.

The legal battle over whether Norman Williams, under death sentence for murder, shall pay with his life was en route again to the state supreme court yesterday.

Solicitor General A. S. Skelton, of the northern circuit, who prosecuted Williams, filed a bill of exceptions to Judge Paul S. Etheridge's action in dismissing a demurrer to a petition filed in Williams' behalf by William Sheller, Atlanta attorney.

When Judge Etheridge refused to sustain the demurrer, he set a hearing for July 5 on the merits of the habeas corpus petition to set aside the verdict against Williams.

Authorities in the Nazi-dominated free city suggested the Danzig government might use the incident to attempt arbitrarily to reduce the number of Polish customs inspectors.

Polish circles in Warsaw reiterated that any such move or any effort to hamper the work of Polish inspectors would meet with effective counter-measures.

DR. JACOBS PASSES HIS POSTAL EXAM BEFORE UNCLE SAM

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs now knows the thrill often experienced by his students at Oglethorpe University.

He has passed his examinations.

Except in the case of the president of the university, Uncle Sam was the teacher, rather than the faculty of Oglethorpe.

Dr. Jacobs took a civil service examination to retain his standing of eligibility for a Georgia postmastership, nomination of which was sent to the senate yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The educational leader has held the post at Oglethorpe University for the past 20 years, having been appointed under President Warren G. Harding. Jacobs said yesterday:

"For years we (the post office) have been a fourth-class post office, but now we are third class, and there is as much difference as there is in a M. A. and a Ph. D. degree."

CHURCHMEN SEEK BUILDING FUNDS

Wheat Street Baptists To Sponsor Tag Day.

A city-wide tag day will be sponsored Saturday by the Wheat Street Baptist church to help raise funds for the completion of the church building, Auburn avenue and Yonge street.

Approximately $9,000 will be required to finish the project which has been under way several months. It is hoped to have it ready prior to the start of the World Alliance meeting opening July 22.

CONDITION OF SOUTH PRAISED BY BOLEN

Atlanta and the south are well off, but don't realize it, Councilman C. M. Bolen said yesterday on returning from a tour of the west and a visit to the Golden Gate Exposition.

With him were Mrs. Bolen and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Walker. Walker is the city purchasing agent, and Bolen is vice chairman of the purchasing committee.

said Secretary Robert, "I wrote Kennedy telling him I had been urging the elimination of discriminatory rates long before I became secretary of the national committee and long before the Roosevelt administration began, and that I expected to continue doing so. I suggested to him that he might study the subject and try to explain to his constituents the increased cost of products to them by virtue of the discriminatory rates.

"He has not answered my letter so why should he complain that Mr. Roosevelt has not answered his?

"Yes, I have talked freight rates constantly since 1915 with everyone who would listen. I talked to Mr. Roosevelt before he was Governor of New York, when he was Governor of New York, and many times since he has been President. He is probably much more conversant with this highly important national subject than Mr. Kennedy, and he has several times strongly advocated a fair and equitable freight rate structure for all sections of the country, and has particularly pointed this out as a matter to be corrected in helping to alleviate some of the problems of the south."

The Kennedy letter of today follows:

"Dear Mr. President:

"On March 8, 1939, I wrote you a letter to call your attention to

THE CONSTITUTION BEGINS 72D YEAR WITH ISSUE TODAY

The Atlanta Constitution begins its 72d year in the service of the people of Atlanta, of Georgia, and of the south, with this morning's issue.

The paper was founded in 1868, in the midst of the Reconstruction period, and led in the successful fight to return the government of the state to the people of the state.

The Constitution has had many notable writers and contributors, including Henry W. Grady, internationally famous as an orator and writer; Joel Chandler Harris, creator of Uncle Remus; Frank L. Stanton, poet; "Bill Arp" humorist, and the late Clark Howell and Francis W. Clarke, editor and publisher and executive editor, respectively. In 1931, The Constitution was awarded the Pulitzer Gold Medal for the most distinguished and meritorious public service of any American newspaper during the year 1930.

GAME WARDENS MUST PASS EXAM

Merit System To Be Used Under Charles Elliott, Wild Life Director.

Selection of Georgia's game wardens under a merit system—similar to one used by the State Highway Patrol—was announced yesterday by Charles L. Elliott, shortly after he was sworn in as acting director of the division of wild life.

He said 200 men would be picked from applications and brought to Atlanta for study in wild life propagation and protection. Out of these, he asserted, "from 80 to 75" would be selected by competitive examination for appointment as wardens.

Elliott, director of the division of state parks, took the new post under a reorganization plan. He succeeds Joe D. Mitchell, resigned.

Eugene L. Bothwell was sworn in as acting director of state parks. He has been assistant director of the division since 1937.

From Georgia

Georgia tomato plants grow New Jersey tomatoes. Georgia Irish potato seed stock becomes Florida potatoes. Georgia hogs end their career as Smithfield hams. All very properly, and to the advantage of Georgia farmers, yet all to the greater profits of the people of other states.

This is an old story. The same principle works in Georgia industries. Georgia kaolin makes the fine china of the Ohio manufacturers. Georgia cotton cloth goes north to be made into the dresses that adorn the women of the nation. The list is long.

The "added value" share of the consumer dollar is poured into the pockets of the citizens of other states, while the Georgia farmer and the Georgia workman now must remain content with the pittance which falls as his share of the process of bringing natural resources to the sales counter of the grocery store, the department store or novelty shop.

Many factors enter into the reasons for this condition. Rail rates are one element. Lack of training is another. Inadequate financing opportunities, still another. Marketing periods and practices are also involved. Yet all but those dictated by nature can and should be corrected. Southern money should be available for financing of home industries. Southern pressure can correct the inequitable railroad situation. Southern education, particularly in the vocational field, can and should be established on a more firm foundation.

Then, Georgia tomato plants would still become New Jersey tomatoes, but at the same time Georgia tomatoes would be known as the nation over as a table delicacy. Georgia potatoes, if distinctive and ably marketed, would be as well known as Maine and Idaho potatoes. Georgia china would rank with the best. Teach the farmer to properly raise, feed and cure hams, and it would be necessary to bow not a whit to Virginia. Georgia manufactured products would return wealth to the source of wealth.

When Georgia ends the export of its fertility and its brains and its money, then may it be expected that the state will assume its proper status as one of the wealthiest of these United States. It is not the task of a day, or a year, or a decade. It is not the task of one man, or of 100 men, but of all Georgians. It will call for sacrifices, for daring, for risk and initiative. But it can and will be done. For the raw material is inherent in the soil and the people of Georgia.

Object Lessons

Lori Sullivan, deputy commissioner of the state department of public safety, in his statement praising the current Atlanta Safety Tire Week, said that safety crusades would not be necessary if every Georgia motorist could arrive at the scene of a fatal motor accident the moment after the crash occurred. That these are true words cannot for a moment be disputed by any who have, by circumstance, been made spectators at a bad automobile accident.

Sullivan expressed it vividly when he said: "If the automobile owners of Georgia could see the gruesome spectacles found at these fatal accident scenes—the blood, bones, human flesh, steel and glass ground together—and if they could see the tragedy and hear the pitiful cries of the injured victims, it would not be necessary to call attention to anything so commendable and fine as a week set aside and dedicated to something that will prevent these accidents."

Most persons are familiar with that memorable piece of writing published a year or more ago, "And Sudden Death," which has been so widely circulated in pamphlet form since its publication as a magazine article. In this, too, vivid words, realistic and full of the horrible imagery of the actualities of traffic accidents, hammered out the message of safety.

It seems unfortunate there are many motorists still rolling along the highways who need first-hand object lessons in horror, when not a great deal of imagination will suffice to conjure up the consequences of carelessness.

Invitation to Catastrophe

As operation of the Wages and Hours law progresses the warnings made, and disregarded, at the time it was under congressional debate are being confirmed by results. Conceived as one more panacea for the nation's economic troubles, the operation of the law itself is forcing realization it not only fails to benefit labor, as was intended, but that labor is the greatest sufferer through its workings. Likewise it is becoming clear that, instead of aiding in the war against economic recession, it is actually contributing to the causes which have handicapped the nation.

R. O. Arnold, of Covington, president of the Cotton Manufacturers Association of Georgia, now warns that if the proposed 32 1/2 cent minimum hourly wage is ordered in the textile industry, it will mean 25,000 workers in the cotton mills of Georgia will lose their jobs. Many mills will not be able to operate under such a wage schedule and their closing will remove practically the entire industrial pay roll in the small towns and communities of which they are the center and for which they provide the business lifeblood.

Ripples from such closing would be felt not only throughout all business in Georgia, but all over the nation. It would be another severe national blow and would hinder the desired return to prosperity in degree that no man can adequately measure.

There isn't a mill operator in Georgia who would close his plant if it were humanly possible to keep running. There is no mill operator who would not gladly pay as high wages as possible. Yet there is a mathematical limit which is inexorable. When costs of operation exceed revenue, the time must quickly come when the mill must close. No business can operate indefinitely at a loss. Except, possibly, such as are subsidized by government funds, collected from the taxpayers.

It was a highly idealistic dream, to increase by law the contents of every worker's pay envelope and to reduce by law the hours of labor required to earn that wage. But all laws which ignore the fundamental rules of arithmetic, which scorn the natural law of supply and demand, cannot work.

This law, if not quickly modified in enforcement, will do irreparable harm to the very people it was intended to benefit, the workers. For there is but scant comfort in a guaranteed minimum wage, when the worker has neither job, wage nor means of sustenance.

For their own sakes, the workers themselves should be the first to demand that reason be used in the enforcement of a law that is such a threat to their very livelihood.

Strange Aptitude

The Japanese aptness for arousing resentment against themselves from the outside as well as within China is no better demonstrated than in their repeated, useless bombings of foreign churches and missions and their wanton slaughtering of helpless civilians. Promises that the practice would be discontinued apparently mean nothing.

On May 28, at Foochow, war planes swooped over the city dropping bombs which killed and injured innumerable noncombatants and destroyed hundreds of buildings of no military value. This destructive bombing was preceded only a day or two by five other raids—all within a few hours—with similar disastrous effects.

At the same time word came from Putian, southwest of Foochow, that the American Methodist mission had suffered irreparable damage from Japanese naval aircraft. The Methodist church, girls' school and dormitory and the teachers' residence were totally destroyed. The only reason, of course, the entire personnel was not killed was they fled just in time. During the same raid, and there seems no reason to doubt the truth of the reports, the flyers turned their machine guns upon helpless Chinese fishermen, their wives and children, huddled for safety into tiny river craft.

On June 9 Japanese air raiders destroyed the American church mission at Shihshan in Hupan Province. Luckily no foreigners were injured or killed. Their good fortune, however, could in no way be attributed to the thoughtfulness of the raiders. Chinese civilians were not so fortunate. The customary quota of women and children were killed.

Thus, slowly but surely, the Japanese are building up a feeling of resentment, a hatred, not only among the Chinese, but throughout the civilized world, which promised restitution and apology will not eradicate. It is not a human characteristic to forget or forgive the murder of wives and children, of brothers and sisters, of the wanton destruction of home, of church, of religious institutions.

Bank bandits in the Midwest return to the pretty custom of taking a blonde on their forays. It is resented, of course, by all who feel that woman's place is in the home.

THE ITALIANS MAY HAVE SOMETHING THERE

(From The Birmingham News) The Italian controlled press is explaining these days that during the World War the Italian people really were not fighting the German people. The war was against the Habsburgs, the old Austro-German ruling house, it is insisted.

The idea may be right. Come to think of it, we Americans in the World War believed we were not fighting the German people, but the Habsburgs and the war lords. If this country should be led now into another war with Germany we would be fighting not through hate of the German people; we would be fighting Hitler and his Nazis. Even the French, we suspect, do not as a people hate the Germans, a people.

In fact, the Germans and the Italians, like the French and the English and the Americans, are, on the whole, kindly and war-hating peoples. The Germans and the Italians, like the others, prefer peace and home life and working in the gardens and going to the theater and friendly companionship.

It is impossible, if you know anything about them at all, to hate a whole people. We hope the Italians reading their subsidized press will keep that fact in mind and apply it in all directions and not only in behalf of their current allies.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ONLY ONE ANECDOTE WASHINGTON, June 12.—There is only one good Washington story about Sir Ronald Lindsay, who has just finished his last big job as British ambassador to the United States. It deals with an incident at the White House diplomatic reception held shortly after the Japanese attack on Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen, the then British ambassador to China.

Sir Ronald was in his usual place at the head of the diplomatic line, looking, as usual, monumenally tall and more than monumenally immobile, and staring, as usual, up at the ceiling. Suddenly a member of the Japanese embassy staff trotted up to introduce himself. The other diplomats saw Sir Ronald's attention attracted by the loud, polite Japanese hissing somewhere in the region of the Lindsay waistcoat, watched Sir Ronald's head bend, and heard the Japanese saying, between more hisses, how happy he was to meet Sir Ronald, and how many English diplomats had been his close friends. It even seemed that once, in the happy long-ago, the Japanese and "Sir Hugessen" had been the closest of cronies.

"Oh—ah—yes," replied Sir Ronald, vaguely examining the ceiling again. "Yes, Isn't it lucky you didn't kill him?"

DIPLOMAT AND MAN Both the fact that the story is unique and the story itself tell a great deal about Sir Ronald. An ambassador of the sort generally described as "good will" would have become the subject of scores of anecdotes in nine years in Washington. Sir Ronald was constitutionally unable to be a "good-will ambassador," and probably never wanted to anyway. His family—a very ancient Scottish one—was actually famous for a certain tribal remoteness from human contacts. For example, there's a legend that he and his father encountered one another quite by chance, after a long separation, and that, when their greetings were over, the father, who had many sons, placed his hand on Sir Ronald's shoulder and remarked abstractedly, "Let me see, is this Angus, or is it Ronald?"

And then, besides being withdrawn and contemplative by nature, Sir Ronald is an old-fashioned diplomat, unaccustomed to the public concessions and private conciliations which are required of a "good-will ambassador." The failure to make the concessions and offer the conciliations has sometimes generated ill will.

At the same time, those in a position to know will tell you that he has managed his real job, which is to represent his government before the governments of this country, as efficiently as he managed the Japanese. He is frank, calm and sensible in negotiation, is wise in inferring his own government's attitude to events here, and held in warm affection by most like Sir Ronald Hull, with whom he must be almost daily. He has had his hard times as when preparations for the London economic conference sent the entire administration into a senseless frenzy of the sort which a man like Sir Ronald is least able to understand. No doubt he has occasionally been shocked by the unconventional enthusiasms of the President's diplomacy, and perhaps he has shown it, for some New Dealers call him over-cold. But essentially, although too much zeal tends to distract him, his imperturbability comes from his habit of viewing a long in a long perspective.

THE TREATY-MAKER As an individual, Sir Ronald is kindly, learned, philosophical and cautious. As an official, he is almost oppressively distinguished, having had a long and almost uniformly successful career in many posts. He was one of the most important British representatives in Egypt in the troubled war years. He was the ambassador who healed the wartime breach between England and Turkey, and with infinite patience negotiated the important Mosul oil treaty. He was at the Berlin embassy before he came to Washington. And his service here, which began in 1930, has been twice prolonged beyond the customary term.

Here, too, aside from the routine of his post, he can boast a striking achievement. If there was one, absolutely vital incident of Anglo-American relations in these last years, it was the British refusal to sign what was then believed to be infinitely damaging. The British government was stubbornly reluctant from first to last. Sir Ronald, seeing the danger of a failure to co-operate with the Hull trade policy, was patiently, interminably persuasive and explanatory. In the end he won. At the State Department, he is given chief credit for the final agreement—which, all by itself, aside from all else that he has done, is a great achievement for one man.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

The hills are the breasts of Dame Nature,
Where hunger of soul finds surcease,
The mountains are temples for worship,
The valleys are chancels of peace.

The Bible—
And the Hills.
"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help."

So sang David, the Psalmist. Thus telling, in scarce more than a dozen words, the objective, the theme and the realization of a whole day spent in travel. Last Sunday.

We shall never tire of traveling through the mountain regions of Georgia, of North Carolina, of Tennessee. Sometimes the road we follow is familiar through many previous journeys. But the panorama of beauty that unfolds before us is ever new, just as all the glory of creation as exemplified upon this bounteous earth, is ever new.

Winding roads that lead up, and up, and up, toward the peaks. Open spaces from which, standing, we can look over the vistas of the trees and the fields and the hills that roll away into infinity, for scores upon scores of miles. Dancing, laughing waters that cascade down the wet black rocks or, pouring in unbroken sheet over some ledge, tumble into the mystery of a cool, deep gorge below.

The varying greens of the trees upon the hillsides, as the sun shines down to liven them in its gold. The little homes, nestling in the peaceful valleys. The tiny frame churches, with bell-fry and bell atop, to toll the simple people to another day of worship, of rest and of renewal for strength.

There are glories among the hills that are to be found nowhere else in all God's creation.

Spiritual Sustenance. There is a mystery about the hills. They bring to the tired and worried spirit a new strength, a life-giving sustenance. They are as the breasts of Mother Nature, ready to feed all her children who can but find the way to her never-failing stores.

Climb up to the high altitudes, among the hills. Feel the different touch of the wind upon your face and breathe deep of the revitalizing purity of the air. Feast your eyes upon the rhododendron and the mountain laurel. Hear, now and then, from the cool depths of the forests you pass the clear, sweet call of the bobwhite, or the music of the whip-poor-will. Stand on some mountain peak and lift your face toward the sky. Feel the cool lash of the rain upon your cheeks and walk upon the velvet carpet of the woods.

If you do not, by such experience, find new strength for the tasks you must fulfill, if there is no inspiration for a better way of life than any you have known, if there is no increase in patience, no riper understanding, then you are, indeed, a renegade among Mother Nature's children.

In fact, the Germans and the Italians, like the French and the English and the Americans, are, on the whole, kindly and war-hating peoples. The Germans and the Italians, like the others, prefer peace and home life and working in the gardens and going to the theater and friendly companionship.

FARMERS URGED TO QUICKLY POISON EARLY WEEVILS

Truitt Sees Full Crop of Cotton If Fast-Acting Planters Prevent Normal Egg Hatching.

Early appearance of hibernating boll weevils in Fulton county may spell their doom and permit planters to make a full crop free of further infestation, Sid D. Truitt, county agricultural agent, said yesterday.

Warning that the 1939 boll weevil crop should be attacked as soon as possible to prevent spring multiplication, Truitt said the weevil has emerged ahead of time because of the warm weather and recent rains.

"The early appearance of the weevil offers an excellent opportunity for Fulton county farmers to wipe them out for the entire season and thus produce a crop free of the pests," Truitt asserted.

"It is an application of poison can be applied soon, to kill the overwintering weevils, for a farmer in many cases may be able to make a full crop without additional poisoning because if they get the weevil in time, the young will not be hatched."

"Where dusting machinery is available, a combination of sulphur for the Texas cotton flea and calcium arsenate for the weevils will prove double effective. At any rate, an early treatment for both pests should be made."

"I believe the unseasonable appearance of the boll weevil in Fulton county may be an actual boon to farmers, and I hope they will take full advantage of it."

Truitt explained that a large numbers of weevils have been reported in various sections of the county and that they have arrived several weeks ahead of schedule, coming directly from winter quarters without having been denied so long.

Underprivileged Youngsters Get Vacation at New Outdoor Camp

Atlanta Mission Sends First Nine Children To Enjoy Healthful Recreation in Country Near Hapeville; Larger Groups Also To Enjoy 'Fairytale.'

By LUKE GREENE.

What had seemed like a fairy tale began to blossom into reality yesterday for nine Atlanta youngsters of low-income families who officially opened the Atlanta Mission's Open Air Camp near Hapeville.

For some of them it was the first real experience in the country. In striking contrast to their usual pent-up routine, they scampered merrily through the woods, splashed into the mirror-like waters of a cool swimming pool and lived the outdoor life they have been denied so long.

Dr. Williams Directs.

This camp, which is under the direction of Dr. Felton Williams, will be operated all summer if enough money can be found to keep it open. The youngsters who go there can't pay anything. If they had to, they couldn't be there. Some of their fathers are on relief, and it's all they can do to keep the family in food and clothing. Generous Atlantans are filling the gap by making contributions. A five-dollar bill will keep one youngster at the camp a whole week.

Later, larger groups will be taken to this country castle. At present only one of three new cottages has been completed and facilities are limited. The other two cottages, however, will be ready for occupation in a few days. The youngsters who have an opportunity to go to this camp get something besides an outing. They learn things. To give you an idea of just what they do learn, follow them through a typical day: Almost at dawn—well, anyway, by 6:30—they hurriedly climb out of bed and dress while the birds twitter merrily outside their windows.

Ready for Work, Play.
Then, as the sun creeps higher into a blue sky, they scramble out into the yard and stand at attention while the flag is raised. After that comes breakfast, cleaning of their rooms and an assembly meeting at 10 o'clock when they sing, hear stories and participate in dramatic sketches.

It's then time for classes which include swimming, dancing and arts and crafts. After lunch there is a one-hour rest period, swimming, another class and an hour for hiking or strolling around the camp.

When supper has been completed there is another rest period and a recreation hour when the youngsters play games and sing. The climax of the day's activities is the vesper service at 8:30 o'clock.

TAXPAYERS AROUSED.

Taxpayers of the United States are "aroused to the high cost of political misrule," he declared, adding "they are turning out the political bosses."

"An aroused and ever vigilant public opinion is the only guarantee of a good government.

"It is my opinion that had Georgia adopted a real merit system for its public employees, as Governor Rivers urged, most of the present difficulties of the state administration could have been avoided."

Mrs. Rushing Speaks.

Another speaker, Mrs. L. Bertie Rushing, of Glennville, president of the Georgia league, urged her postmaster colleagues against a "mistaken idea that any old kind of service will suffice just because we happen to be a part of a system with which people must co-operate, whether they like it or not."

"Such a spirit reflects a shadow on the postal service and those striving to uphold the high standard may be the ones to be branded by the critic," she said.

Reviewing the year's work of the league, Mrs. Rushing also pointed to activities outlined for future months, including: Extension of civil service to clerks in third-class post offices receiving $600 annually or more; inclusion of postmasters under the retirement act; adoption of a salary plan to replace the present computation on a basis of cancellations, and installation of government-owned equipment in third-class offices.

RAMSPECK SCORES POLITICAL MISRULE

Aroused Public Tamed Only Guarantee of Good Government.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 12.—(AP) Congressman Robert Ramspeck of the fifth Georgia district, long a champion of civil service, today applauded a rebellion "against public officials who look upon public office as a game in which the successful candidates operate the government for the personal benefit of their supporters."

He spoke at the meeting of the Georgia branch, National League of District Postmasters.

STOLEN ARTICLES RECEIVER IS FINED

Junk Dealer Convicted; Must Pay $750.

Max London, Decatur street junk dealer, yesterday pleaded guilty in Fulton county superior court to three charges of receiving stolen goods and was fined $750 and ordered to make restitution or serve 36 months on the public works.

He was charged with receiving $283 worth of lead which was stolen last December from the Atlantic Steel Company by two former employees of the company.

The plea was entered in Judge Walter C. Hendrix's division of superior court.

THE SCOUTMASTER.

TALKING with a fine businessman the other day who has been an outstanding scoutmaster in Atlanta for a decade, I expressed admiration and appreciation for a man as busy as he who would make place in his schedule for a distinctive service to boys. He demurred, stating that he regarded it a very great opportunity, adding that he got lots of fun out of scouting.

"I have made a few sound investments in my life, but none that pays as high dividends as the time and thought and effort devoted to the boys in my troop. Some of the boys are now grown men, making good in the business and professional fields. I have had the joy of leading a number of them to accept Christ as Savior."

Which brings to mind these lines:

Who builds in boys builds lastingly in truth.
And vanished hands are multiplied
in power.
And sounds of living voices, hour
by hour,
Speak forth his message with the lips of youth.

Here, in the home of hope, whose doors are love,
To shape young souls in images of right,
To train frail twigs straight upward
toward the Light—
Such work as this God measures from above.

Granite may crumble, wind and wave destroy,
Urn, shaft or wood may perish or decay;
But this shall last forever and a day,
His living, loving monument—a boy!

And the very day I talked with the fine scoutmaster, I was in Decatur for a funeral. Stopping a moment on the courthouse square for a traffic light, I saw a boy in overalls, limping along the hot sidewalk. As I started with the green light, I found myself alongside this boy. I called to him to ask if I could take him anywhere. I discovered that he was crying. Limping over to the running-board, he told me he had come into town to get a doctor to open his foot, but the doctors seemed to be out on calls and he wondered what to do. I persuaded him to get in with me, and I drove him by a hospital where we found a gracious doctor on duty in the clinic, and as I put him back on the interurban, he turned to me and said:

"Didn't know anybody would take the time to help a boy like me. Sho do appreciate it. If I can ever do anything for you, just holler."

Truth is, he had done something for me—given me an opportunity to help a boy

MY LOVE IS WAITING

Bart Is Not Angry When Dorian Returns, But Says He Loves Her

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
When Dorian Lane inherits a thousand dollars, she is most resentful because Parkton, Va., society has not taken up, urges her to make a Mediterranean cruise, and thus meets the right people. Dorian, smitten by her mother's ambitions, romances Dorian's lover, but she only succeeds him. On the cruise ship, Miles Kennedy and Bart Warren are attracted by the beauty, and Miles is smitten with her, but, as of college, he must go to work to help his father rebuild their bankrupt shoe factories. Dorian, too, is smitten, but she only falls in love with handsome, cynical Bart who has succeeded in business. In New York since Fern, who has followed him, has been working for James Marshall. Bart is amazed when he sees Fern and her six-year-old son, Harold, and is shocked to learn that him that Marshall is dead after losing his fortune. Bart is more surprised when he learns that Miles has asked Dorian to marry him. Dorian's cabin mate is pretty, blonde Patricia West who for love has saved from her purse the money for this cruise to meet and marry a rich man. At Cannes she shows Dorian the big emerald engagement ring given to her by her husband, who is much older than she. Fern tells Bart that Miles is in love with Dorian and that she would be with him if she was fascinated by Bart. While sight-seeing in Genoa, Dorian and Miles miss the ship. Miles and Bart will be angry, instead he tells her he missed her greatly and that he loves her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY!

INSTALLMENT XI.

The men in the American Express office in Rome looked very amused when Miles and Dorian came in the following morning and told of missing the Napoli in Genoa. Dorian turned her head and smiled when the clerk called her "Mrs. Kennedy" as he and Miles were planning a day's tour of Rome.

That afternoon in the Vatican Museum they came upon the party from the ship. Seeing them, Pat broke away from the group and hurried over. Robert Maxwell and Fern followed.

"We thought we'd find you here! Pat cried, taking Dorian's hands. "We hoped we would! What happened?"

Dorian, "We were three minutes too late."

Fern smiled at them. "The story grows in leaps and bounds. In fact, it was so certain you had eloped that they were going to put your baggage off in Naples."

The other passengers grouped about them. For a few minutes art was forgotten. Then Dorian walked ahead with Fern and said, "Bart didn't come."

Fern shook her head. "No. He probably knows you're in safe hands and he's been here many times—he told me. I left Stephen in care of the stewardess. He's too young to appreciate this."

Dorian spoke her fears. "I wonder if Bart is angry. We didn't plan to miss the ship." He didn't plan to be all right when you go aboard tonight."

"I hope so."

All through the crowded day and night part of her mind was in Naples with Bart—part of her mind and all of her heart. Nor was she alone; she was with Miles, but in a group that included Pat and Robert and Fern. After dinner they took the train for Naples.

It was past midnight when they reached Naples. Quite without realizing her obvious eagerness, Dorian hurried ahead of the others up the gangplank. An acquaintance on deck asked, "What happened to you? We thought you'd deserted us" and she had to stop and tell again about missing the ship by three minutes and hurried on, looking into indistinguishable faces in the faint light, looking everywhere for Bart, thinking she must see him tonight, that she could not bear to wait until morning.

After circling the deck twice, she still did not see him and her heart dropped sickeningly. And on the train from Rome she had visualized him waiting for her. Then she thought, "I should have said good-night to Miles and thanked him for taking such good care of me. He didn't lose his head or his sense of humor. I wasn't afraid once at being stranded." But she could bear to wait until morning to see Miles.

She went up on the sports deck.

She passed for a brief glimpse of Naples with the lights around it like a necklace. Not far away Vesuvius sent up little clouds of smoke.

The stars were so bright and thick and close she felt she could reach out and pluck one.

Turning, holding back her flowing hair, she looked down the sports deck and saw the tall figure of a man walking toward her. Bart? It had to be he! It had to be! She stood still, feeling happy, feeling weak. She wanted to hold out her arms to him.

It was he. She took several quick eager steps to him, feeling that surely she would die if he did not put his arms around her.

"Bart!" All Dorian's love was the sound of his name. She took another eager step towards him there in the dim light of the sports deck.

"Darling . . ."

She went into his arms impulsively, eagerly as a child who has been lost and who has come home.

Bart thought it of a flippant, almost cruel remark which would indicate his annoyance that she has missed the ship in Genoa. That it had been part carelessness and part youthful enthusiasm for an ancient and fascinating city, he knew. Now her love, honest and unashamed, stirred him. It was good to be loved and admired and adored by Dorian Lane who had never loved any other man and who brought with her love honesty and sincerity and youth and hope . . .

When he kissed her, he said, "I missed you terribly." Then he said what he had not said to any girl since he had said it to Fern, "I love you . . . I love you."

Dorian stirred in his arms and looked up at him. "And I love you. I thought you'd never say it."

"I'll say it again." He smiled. "Dorian, I love you. I'll say it quite often from now on." He lay her hair. "Why haven't I said it before?" He smiled again. "Perhaps I shouldn't have said it then if you hadn't looked . . ."

"As if I'd die if you didn't. I thought we'd never get here. And then I looked all over for you and didn't see you anywhere . . ."

"I was waiting. I've been waiting since noon." He kissed her again and said, "You're so dear, so very dear."

"I have been. He loves. Bart loves me."

"Did you ask me to marry him?" Pat said quickly. "It doesn't cost anything for a man to tell you he loves you but when he's willing to make out his life insurance to you—that's another matter."

Dorian smiled. "No. He didn't ask me to marry him. It's enough now to know that he loves me. Why, I wonder. He has probably met so many beautiful, glamorous women."

"You're too modest."

"I'm happy. That's all I know or care about tonight. I'm so happy, Pat!" Then she said, "We both knew what we wanted and we both found it."

WOOD FORESEES FARM REVOLUTION AS BOON TO SOUTH

Industrial Advances Seen as Georgia's Hope by Chicagoan Speaking at Athens on Alumni Day.

ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—(P)—Georgians were assured today they had "natural advantages and opportunities at hand to build a great and prosperous state."

Principal speaker at Alumni Day ceremonies in connection with the University of Georgia commencement exercises, General Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board for Sears, Roebuck and Company, continued:

"But more than natural resources, count the spirit, the temper and the unity of the people and of the leaders of the state. If the people of Georgia have the right spirit, there is nothing they can not accomplish in this state."

General Wood predicted rapid growth for the southern states as industry expands and agriculture is diversified.

Farm Revolution.

"Right now this state is in the midst of an agricultural revolution," he asserted. "For 100 years its economy has been built on cotton, but boll weevil, loss of foreign markets, and competition of other sections have tended to ruin cotton growing in Georgia."

"The transitional period is painful, but in the long run this change will work to the advantage and betterment of the state."

Industry is needed to absorb farmers who will leave their land because of these changes in agriculture, he continued, emphasizing that the ones who remain farmers "will be more intelligent and have a higher standard of living" than their fathers.

Livestock and other crops will more than make up the losses from cotton, he continued, although he insisted "the one-crop farmer, whether of cotton, tobacco or wheat, rarely prospers for the long pull."

"It seems plain that industry can greatly increase in this state in the next 10 years. How it will increase depends upon the character and intelligence of your leadership."

About 700 seniors will receive diplomas at graduation exercises tomorrow, when Dr. Rufus Harris, president of Tulane University, will be the speaker.

Lovejoy Re-elected.

Today the alumni here elected Hattie Lovejoy, of LaGrange, as president of their association, to succeed James H. Hull, of Augusta.

Dr. William Perrin Nicolson, of Atlanta, and Miss Anne Brumby, of Athens, were named to the board of directors.

Portraits of three late distinguished alumni were presented this morning following the annual meeting. Mrs. Jane Hammond Gilbert presented a portrait of Nathaniel Job Hammond, noted Georgia lawyer and member of the university board of trustees who was a member of the class of 1852.

A feature of the program was presentation of medals to eight university professors who have served the faculty for more than 40 years.

General Robert J. Travis, representing the University of Georgia Club of Savannah, presented the medals to C. M. Strahan, W. H. Bocock, W. D. Hooper, J. H. McPherson, John Morris, R. E. Park, C. M. Snelling and U. H. Davenport.

The board of regents of the University System of Georgia, meeting yesterday, re-elected Marion Smith as chairman and Cason J. Callaway as vice chairman. Others continued were L. R. Siebert, secretary, and W. Wilson Noyes, treasurer.

VANDERBILT PLANS $9,000,000 EXPANSION

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 12.—(P)—A $9,000,000 expansion program for Vanderbilt University, to be achieved during the next six years, was announced today by Chancellor O. C. Carmichael following the commencement meeting of the institution's board of trust.

The program will include additions to the endowment of the college of arts and sciences, graduate school and all professional schools as well as several new buildings.

Eight Veteran University Educators Are Decorated

Eight members of the University of Georgia faculty were decorated yesterday at the 10th annual Alumni Day exercises for their more than 40 years' service to the institution. Left to right: Brigadier General Robert J. Travis, who presented the medallions on behalf of the Alumni Club of Savannah; Dr. Charles M. Strahan, Dr. Robert E. Park, Chancellor Emeritus Charles M. Snelling, Professor Emeritus U. H. Davenport, Dr. Willis H. Bocock, Dr. J. H. T. McPherson, Dr. John Morris and Dr. W. D. Hooper.

half of the Alumni Club of Savannah; Dr. Charles M. Strahan, Dr. Robert E. Park, Chancellor Emeritus Charles M. Snelling, Professor Emeritus U. H. Davenport, Dr. Willis H. Bocock, Dr. J. H. T. McPherson, Dr. John Morris and Dr. W. D. Hooper.

they ended off with lightning, thunder and wind and a downpour of rain.

However, it was all over when we started for the station. There the King and Queen said good-bye and a word of thanks to everyone. They remembered each individual, the chauffeur who drove them, the state police and the major in charge of the detail of soldiers. Once on the platform of their car, they turned to stand behind the train pulled out.

Crowd Sings.

The crowd suddenly began singing "Auld Lang Syne" and then the verse of another Scotch song. I saw the newspaper people writing notes hastily, and I am sure they sensed a feeling of regret that seemed to be in every individual present at bidding good-bye to this gracious couple who have endeared themselves to all who have been there.

We stood and waved, but my mother-in-law reminded me of the old superstition that one must not watch people out of sight, so before they turned the bend, we were back in our cars and on our way home.

This morning the President and I start for West Point, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leavitt and their son from Spokane, Wash., are going with us. That I will have to tell you about tomorrow.

100 IN AREA ATTEND RECREATION SCHOOL

Training Institute at Emory Opens Four-Week Course.

More than 100 recreation leaders from Atlanta and other cities and towns in Georgia attended the opening session of the Training Institute for Recreation Workers which opened yesterday at Emory University. The course will continue for four weeks during which instruction in leadership training will be given workers.

Nature, social recreation and arts and crafts are included on the program, while games, hobbies and crafts are among other activities. Most of those enrolled already are engaged in some form of recreation leadership in schools, churches, and the WPA administration recreational organization.

The courses are being sponsored by the city park department and Social Planning Council. Similar courses for colored workers are being provided at Atlanta University by the Atlanta School of Social Work. A short course has been arranged for those who are unable to attend during the day and will be held Tuesday and Friday nights from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock.

THOMAS SPEAKS IN JERSEY CITY

Civil Liberties Union Rallies on Spot Hague Once Re-fused Them.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 12.—(P)—Backed by the recent supreme court decision denying Mayor Frank Hague the power to prevent public assembly, the American Civil Liberties Union rallied tonight in Journal Square from which its speakers had been summarily ejected by police in the past.

The chief executive returned to the capital shortly after 7 p. m. Atlanta time.

"To you our host" it concluded, "and to the many thousands of American citizens who also showed us such true hospitality and such spontaneous courtesy, we send our heartfelt thanks and best wishes."

The King asserted in his message that in Washington, New York "and, indeed wherever we have been in the United States, we have been accorded a reception of which the friendliness was unmistakable."

Almost invariably a communication from the ruler of one nation to the head of another goes through formal diplomatic channels. The fact that King George sent his message directly to Mr. Roosevelt emphasized again the spirit of informal friendliness which surrounded their majesties' four-day stay in the United States.

Personal Telegram From King Thanks Roosevelt for Kindness

Hospitality Shown by United States 'Has Stirred Our Hearts,' Message Says; Canadians Cheer Royal Couple Upon Their Return.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(P)—King George of England told President Roosevelt in a telegram today that the kindness and cordiality shown himself and his Queen in the United States "has stirred our hearts."

The message, signed "George R.", reached the President at Philadelphia, where his special train arrived on the way back to Washington from West Point.

The chief executive returned to the capital shortly after 7 p. m. Atlanta time.

"To you our host" it concluded, "and to the many thousands of American citizens who also showed us such true hospitality and such spontaneous courtesy, we send our heartfelt thanks and best wishes."

Nelson's 70 Beats Wood in Playoff for National Open Title

HOT IRON SHOTS ON 3D AND 4TH DECIDE CONTEST

Craig Admits Match Was All Over Early; Takes a 73.

By BILL BONI.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—(AP)—Byron Nelson, as durable as a cowboy from his native Texas and as cool as a Tom Collins on a summer day, fired two great iron shots on the third and fourth holes of the Philadelphia Country Club's Spring Hill course today and thereby won the 43d National Open golf championship.

He had to go to the 18th green of his second playoff round with Craig Wood before he could make the victory official with a one-over-par 70 to Wood's 73. But the blond bomber from Mamaroneck, N. Y., was ready to admit their struggle for the game's most important title was over as early as the fourth hole.

On No. 3, Nelson used his sand wedge on a downhill lie and lofted a shot that almost rolled into the cup for an eagle 2. On the 4th, out-driven a good 40 yards and 200 yards shot of the green, Byron laced into a No. 1 iron and saw his ball light onto the green, 15 feet short of the cup, roll up and nestle against the pin.

When he and Wood walked onto the green and the pin was lifted out, the ball plumped into the cup for a deuce, Nelson's second eagle of the tournament. Right there the 27-year-old pro from Reading, Pa., who shortly will take over a new job at Inverness in Toledo, had the playoff won. He was four shots in front, and that was too probably his last, and best, shot much for Wood ever to make up. But Wood didn't stop trying. Even on the 17th, which he had started four strokes down, he hit a fine approach shot within two feet of the pin and canned the putt for a birdie 3. Even that, though left him three strokes down with only one to play. Nelson, down the long 18th where Sam Snead had blown a championship which was his for the asking, was far too steady for any chance of a crackup.

For Wood, it meant he had lost

Rain Again Interferes With Matches; Boulware and Gillespie Win.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Five of the 14 seeded players entered the third round of the rain-drenched 54th annual southern tennis tournament yesterday at the Northside Club.

North Carolina's Carlton Rood, ranked sixth, headed the parade into the third round with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Walter Larson, of Mobile, after getting by the second round with a default. But ninth-ranked Harris Everett, of Jacksonville, had the toughest battle of any with stubborn Kells Boland, of Atlanta. When it was over, youth had conquered, 6-3, 6-2.

Burt Boulware, ex-Tech star and now of Tampa, No. 10, came through with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Milton Lucky, of Augusta. Eleventh-ranked Bill Hardie, of Miami, conquered Jim Vuille, of St. Petersburg, 6-4, 6-2.

CONVINCING WIN.

Atlanta's Billy Gillespie served notice he is to be contended with by a convincing 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Miami's George Parks. Gillespie is seeded 13th and will play Charlie Mattman, of Miami, today at 5 o'clock in one of the many featured matches.

Frank Guernsey Jr., national inter-collegiate champ from Orlando, breezed through his match with Atlanta's Parker Stillwell, 6-2, 6-1. The Rice star is seeded third.

Other favored players in the men's singles, including Bitsy Grant, No. 1; Gardner Mulloy, No. 2; Ernie Sutter, No. 4, and Martin Buxby, No. 7, were idle as rain started and stopped like a T-Model Ford all day. Buxby and Mulloy were engaged in matches when the heavens sent one final blast to stop all activity.

Feature matches are scheduled all afternoon at the Northside Tennis Club, starting at 2 o'clock when David Jones, of Atlanta, plays George Parks. At 3, Grant battles Dick Morris, of Winter Park, Fla.; Jack Bushman, of L. S. U., plays the winner of the Buxby-Belcher match at 4 o'clock and at 5 the aforementioned Gillespie-Mattman affair is scheduled.

FAVORITES WIN. Favorites in the women's singles also advanced without undue trouble.

Defaults sent Top-seeded Martha Barnett, of Miami; second-ranked Catherine Sample, also of Miami, and third-favored Nellie Sheer, Miami Beach, this time, into the third round. Mrs. Sample defeated Jane Davenport, of Chattanooga, 6-2, 6-4, in a first-round match.

Doris Hart, also Miami, No. 4, eliminated Eleanor Stroud, of Gulfport, Miss., 6-2, 6-6.

Atlanta's Gladys Vallebuona, who advanced without the loss of a game yesterday, will meet the top-seeded player at 11 o'clock this morning. Miss Barnett recently won a tournament in Birmingham with the loss of only two games.

The entry list includes:

SOUTHERN MEET TO START TODAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 11. (AP)—Carl Dann Jr., of Orlando, Fla., today shook the kinks out of his muscles on the Belle Meade Country Club layout where he will defend his southern amateur championship, won last year at Ponte Vedra, Fla.

He toured the par 71 course in exciting figures, just as more than 100 of his rivals did, awaiting the qualifying rounds of 18 holes each tomorrow and Wednesday.

Asked if he had the shots to repeat the triumph of a year ago, Dann smiled and replied:

"I've been hitting them very well but have been having a little trouble on the greens."

Dann named Henry Castillo, of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge; Freddie Haas, of New Orleans, and Burly Bill Stark Jr., of Ponte Vedra, as the players he fears most.

The entry list includes:

A Dixie will keep you on "the shady side of summer"—you won't have to take a beating from the sun's sizzling rays—you can get genuine heat-relief by simply slipping into one of these famous suits!

It's the easiest way we know to make your summer fun instead of a fizzle! For Dixies are all-wool, cool because they're porous—a "low up-keep" cost because their wool "body" gives them the stamina to hold their shape under the hardest of summer wear.

And, too, Dixies are not just one fabric, but a selection of breeze-inviting weaves that'll give you a cool, well-dressed feeling all summer. So, today, come to Zachry—switch to a Dixie—and "travel the Dixie Highway" to comfort.

the Crackers back into third place. The Smokies threw that six-spot at the Crackers in the first inning on five hits, batting around. Hafey singled to center, Richmond beat out a hit to short and Young singled to right, scoring Hafey. Abernathy forced Young. Then Meyer doubled to left, sending Richmond across. Abernathy scored on a passed ball. King walked and McLeod tripled. Meyer and King scoring. Kies flied to deep left and McLeod scored after the catch.

Rucker singled and Smith doubled to give the Crackers a run in the third. And there were two more Cracker runs in the fifth. Rucker beat Meyer's throw to first and Smith doubled again, Rucker scoring. Sperry beat out an infield hit and Rubeling singled to left, scoring Smith.

The Crackers kept whittling away at the Smoky lead and scored their fourth run in the seventh. Sperry, Whitehouse and Peters hit, with Sperry scoring.

The Crackers started a rally in the eighth when Rucker singled and Richards, hitting for Robinson, walked with one away. Sperry flied to short center and Rucker was out off second.

Rubeling led off with a walk in the ninth, but Lamanski settled down and retired the side in order.

Buford Nine Beats Fairfax Outfit, 9-4

FAIRFAX, Ala., June 12.—Abe White's Buford Shoemakers piled up a 8-0 lead the first four innings and breezed to a 9 to 4 victory over the Fairfax nine today.

Johnson Moore, who pitched for Furman, was hit on the foot in the seventh and had to be replaced by Mercer Harris.

Bubber Yarter led the winner's attack with three for five. John Stowe aided the Buford cause with a homer in the sixth.

RICH'S, Atlanta, June 12.—(FLASH)—WORLD'S MOST OBSCURE ANIMAL BECOMES KING FOR A DAY... ON JUNE 18.

And if you good people don't think that's news... ask Dad... he pays the bills!

Proving that under all our subtle gold-digging that we feel that he's entitled to something more tangible than a pat on the back... Early Bird has chosen some clever and practical rewards for Dad.

Cosmetic Shop's clean presentation is shower soap. It's heart-shaped... prettily packaged in red cellophane... the name? You guessed it, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." Strung on a white cable cord... Dad hangs it round his neck... gets under the shower starts singing... and lets nature and modern plumbing take its course. It's yours... for Dad... for 50c.

On the Fourth Floor... a wallet that Dad's money stays in! MAGIC that's what we call it. The wallet is of stainless metal, won't fingerprint. He sticks the bill in, flips it round... and there it is, safe and sound under an elastic band. It's made by Kensington, famed in Esquire and Fortune, securable at Rich's... all for 2.00.

Too... wonderful bar accessories... a brandy inhaler... an exact reproduction of the one Napoleon used when he drained the sparkling stuff... and tossed in the violet. It's crested with a gold "N"... Dad will feel regal and cherished when he turns it up... the price is 1.50.

There is an epidemic of the things really... for in the same fourth floor department is a family of plain crystal ones... like three bears. A papa inhaler for 90c, a mama-sized snifter for 50c, and a wee baby sipper for 25c. Dad would like the whole set, you know, for the right ounces of his favorite fluid. Amusing John Piel Beer mugs, too... with old John in person for decor. Papa'll enjoy that cool, foam-crested sundowner better for this smart accessory... the price is 3.50... that's right... Fourth Floor.

Leaving dear ole Dad swaying at the bar to the Men's Shop... where there is the most utterly devastating sport jacket (orchidously speaking) ever thought up for the humble male. It's made of Suedetta, water-repellent as a duck's back, and named, if you please, Duke of Windsor. It's royal in green and russet and beige... for small, medium and large daddies. Its glamour is undeniable, it's practicality undisputed, and no harm to the budget... It's 2.95.

For under the sport jacket, we choose a 'hole-hi' sport shirt. The material's oxford cloth, man-sized, slim-trim and raglan-shouldered. Inverted pleat in back (boon to a hole-in-one). Full shrunk, white, vents under the arm to disdain the cavitings of the fahrenheit... the sizes are 14 to 16 and the price is a song at 2.00.

In the same shop, killer-diller pajamas, sleek and prosperous-looking... but the price is soft-hearted. Startlingly enough, they're named "First Nighter." The tops are fine combed balbriggan with short sleeves and dizzy stripes running all 'round. The slacks are dark-toned-matching broadcloth with tailored cuffs. Pleated at the belt line and newer than a preview. Dad can catch 40 winks in them if he likes... but he can also (and probably will) garden, sail, or loll around the house on Sunday morning. They've handy pockets to hold cigarettes, hanky or gadgets, and the size is "A to D," whatever that means... but wherever you file your Daddy he'll feel young-man-about-townish in them. We liked the green ones best... you can choose blue, tan or green. The Men's Shop will give them to you if you'll give them 2.50.

So... yours for a nifty Daddy until next Tuesday... when we will again give you gals a break... watch for the

A true Story

This is a True Story of a girl going to the Fair. The heroine is Miss Emma Kate Hyatt, of Columbus, Georgia, official hostess for Georgia at the Fair for July. Miss Hyatt came to Rich's to choose her wardrobe, secure in the knowledge that she would find the smart, sophisticated things she would need. We show you on this page the separate clothes she'll be taking, because we think they may prove a help to you. They are new, smart, lovely and well within the means of any average American girl of today... or tomorrow.

Hawaiian Bridal Flowers Worn By Columbus Bride-Elect at Party

By Sally Forth.

A LEI of pikake, exotic Hawaiian bridal flowers, accented the costume worn by Frances Woodruff at the dinner party given for her recently by attractive Janet Bowers in Columbus. Frances, you know, becomes the bride of Beverly DuBose Jr., of this city, at a ceremony to be brilliantly solemnized tomorrow in Columbus.

The lei was sent the pretty bride-elect by Mrs. Augusta Turner Venable, a former Columbus belle, who with her husband, now resides in the Hawaiian Islands. The fragrant token arrived on the China Clipper, and was accompanied by two deep pink carnations, which adorned the costumes of the bride-to-be's mother and sister when they attended the party.

Douffie, as Frances is called by her intimates, was honored Saturday at a beautiful luncheon given by her sister, Virginia. The affair assembled the honor guest's wedding attendants, each being presented a miniature loving cup filled with fragrant valley lilies. On one side of the cups was engraved the name of its receiver, while the other side bore the monograms of Frances and Beverly, and the date of their wedding. It was at this party that Douffie presented her bridesmaids the hats to be worn at tomorrow's ceremony.

Adhering to tradition, the prominent bride-elect will wear a dainty gold handkerchief ring, loaned her by Mrs. Jesse Fort, of Griffin, when she ascends the bridal aisle. Frances' "something old" will be an exquisite lace handkerchief made by her mother, Mrs. Jefferson Box, during her young ladyhood, and worn by her when she trod the orange blossom trail. Concealed in the heel of Frances' satin slipper tomorrow will be a lucky sixpence bearing the silhouette of King George. The coin was ordered for the popular Columbus belle by Mrs. Tracey Davis, and will be coupled with a four-leaf clover donated by the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Beverly DuBose, of this city.

Prominent Atlantans motoring to Columbus for the nuptials include Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cauthorn, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Hoppe Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Sam W. Wilkes, Mrs. Clara McConnell, Mesdames Otey B. Mitchell, Robert Woodruff, Edward Hitt, Dr. and Mrs. Willis Ragan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seydel, Dr. and Mrs. John Durton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray Jr., Misses Katherine and May Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Cason Callaway and son, Ely Callaway, of LaGrange, will complete the list of out-of-town guests, with the exception of members of the wedding party and immediate families.

WEN LOVELY ZOE POWELL becomes the bride of Robert Burns Davis at a late afternoon ceremony next Saturday in Newnan, she will wear the priceless rose point lace heron, which adorned her mother's wedding gown. Outlining the modish high neck of her shimmering satin gown, the heron falls almost to her waistline, with narrow bands of lace applied at the wrist of the long satin sleeves. As the former Ruth Hardaway, her mother wore the handsome rose point at the brilliant Newman ceremony at which she became the bride of Jack Powell.

Miss Wilson Weds Dr. William Dobes At Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Sara Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Wilson, to Dr. William L. Dobes, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Dobes, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on Springdale road.

Dr. Walt Holcomb performed the ceremony before relatives and friends of the bridal couple. Mrs. Vivian Graf presented a program of music.

The improvised altar in the living room was banked with palms interspersed with candelabra holding white tapers. Floor baskets of white gladioli and Easter lilies completed the bridal decorations. Dr. Joe Burton was groomsman. Miss Margaret Wilson, maid of honor, was gowned in blue lace featuring net insertions in the floor length skirt. She carried a bouquet of pastel-colored garden flowers.

Miss Marion Barber was bridesmaid. Her gown was designed like that worn by the matron of honor and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Dr. Hal M. Davison. She was gowned in a white chiffon featuring a sweetheart neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves. She carried a prayer book showered with lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wilson entertained at a reception. They were assisted in entertaining by Mesdames W. E. Barber, H. H. Bartlett, R. Y. Sanders and Hal M. Davison.

Miss Wilson received the guests wearing a blue chiffon gown and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

The bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Sea Island and Havana, Cuba. The bride chose for traveling a white sharkskin suit with which she wore blue accessories.
